Regulatory Update:

Tim Anderson presented a regulatory update on DATCP dairy program and DATCP pandemic response (see slides from DRAC August regulatory update 08-2020 presentation). DATCP was focused on inspection flexibility during the pandemic and also implemented food safety calls to plants. Tim also reviewed the Dairy Section's Badger Bounce Back Plan.

DATCP will start posting internal policies and procedures that interpret regulations for comment on DATCP's website and the Legislative Reference Bureau's website. The rBST bill was passed in March and went into effect this week. The Bulk Milk Weigher and Sampler (BMWS) reciprocity bill was also passed in March. DATCP recently went through an FDA evaluation and Tim shared portions of the FDA report regarding the strengths, weaknesses, and recommendations.

Member Concerns

Dean Hines brought concerns on behalf of the Single Farm Pick-Up subcommittee. The subcommittee wishes to discuss concerns around rules ATCP 65.16(3)d, ATCP 82.10(10) and 82.10(11). Issues arising from the current rules:

- Difficult for farms with AMI to shut down their systems and restart them for sample collection. It would be easier for a sample to be taken elsewhere to test (i.e. the dairy plant) and this would minimize downtime at the farm. The sample could be collected with the milk shipment.
- The bulk milk temperature chart is supposed to be calibrated every six months. Could this be done by a licensed BMWS instead of the field reps? The BMWS tend to be a more frequent point of contact. In the case of farms that are doing direct shipments, the field rep would need to do the calibration instead of a BMWS.

Andy Johnson asked if the committee was prepared enough to give an advisory comment on the rule. The subcommittee was not prepared at this time.

Dean Hines motioned to have the subcommittee reconvene at another date and include DATCP to advise as needed. At a future DRAC meeting, the subcommittee would be prepared for proposing changes to the rules. Adam Brock seconded the motion. Motion passed.

By-laws Discussion

Prior to the meeting, the membership sub-committee sent out a language for the membership section of the DRAC operational guidelines. There was no comments or debate at this time. The committee voted to adopt the new language into the membership section. The committee also adopted the DRAC Operational Guidelines.

The 2 and 3 year terms for each of the current stakeholders was determined to minimize turnover of the stakeholders. DATCP created a spreadsheet that randomly selects stakeholders for each term. The committee agreed to this method. It was determined that six people will be on a two-year term and five people will be on three-year term:

The six selected stakeholders for a two-year terms are: Helen Schmude, Katie Tuchalski, Jeff Kirchberg, Robert Wills, Gloria Joseph, and Andy Johnson. The remaining five will be on a three-year term.
