WHAT IS THE DSSA: Customers and retailers have new expectations when it comes to food, and the Dairy Strong Sustainability Alliance provides a holistic approach that meets those expectations while preserving our dairy heritage. The alliance is a collaborative group that represents all aspects of the dairy community: farmers (of all management philosophies), processors, service providers, conservation groups, consumer packaged goods companies, retailers, government agencies, universities and dairy and commodity non-profits. The goal of DSSA is to show tangible continuous improvements in the areas of land use, soil conservation, nutrient management, water quality and use, energy use, animal welfare, food safety, greenhouse emissions, economic health and social responsibility. The alliance achieves this by applying existing sustainability tools to early and mid-stage grassroots efforts led by farmers — individually or as part of a watershed — and then measuring the results over time. Data from each group is compiled annually.
WHO IS THE DSSA: The DSSA is comprised of diverse organizations that embrace the journey of continuous improvement toward a more sustainable dairy supply chain. All outcomes of DSSA’s work are pre-competitive and will be made available to the entire dairy community.
