In each teleconference, members will approve minutes of the last meeting, consider draft recommendations, and identify next steps. Recommendations generated by the sub-committees will be considered by the Task Force at the next full meeting, scheduled for March 15, 2019.

“As the son and grandson of farmers, agriculture and dairy are very personal for me. I am excited and encouraged by the productive discussions happening in these Task Force meetings,” said DATCP Secretary Brad Pfaff. “I’m grateful to the members of the Task Force and its sub-committees for their contributions. I look forward to continuing to share ideas, debate issues, and consider solutions.”

Members of the public are welcome to make in person comments at all Dairy Task Force 2.0 meetings or submit written comments at any time. Dairy Task Force 2.0 information is available at dairytaskforce.wi.gov.
